BANKS TO BE PROTECTED AGAINST FRAUD DEALINGS

District Association Appoints Examiner, Adopts Credit Forms, and Names Committee Which Will Prosecute Forgers. •

Members of the Bankers' Association of the District came away from a meeting at Rauscher's last night fully convinced that in point of practical effectiveness progress toward the institution of much-needed innovations and of measures tending toward the institution of much-needed innovations and of measures tending toward the institution of much-needed innovations and of measures tending toward the solidarity of its members far more had been accompilished than at any previous meeting.

Among the important subjects that came up for consideration were the adoption of a credit form, the appointment of an association bank examiner, and a protective system applicable to the whole organization.

Lawrence O. Murray, Comptroller of the Currency, was present as a guest, and strongly advocated the appointment of a bank examiner who should be in close touch with him.

O. T. Reeves, bank examiner, another guest, also concurred in the opinions that the arransement had many advantages over the general bank examiner plan.

By the new protective arrangement, it was decided to appoint a committee, to be known as the protective committee, whose duty it will be to protect banking institutions in the District.

The credit form adopted was that the District sand member-alors and the District sand members appoint of the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members that the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members are said this arrangement, which personal that the District sand members that the District s of the address of Speaker Champ Clark. The Speaker said that such a meeting as was held last night would have been impossible twenty years are. Mr. Clark declared it was a sign that the world was improving when the men became so broadminded that they disregarded denominational lines and aided one another.

Count Albert Ehrensvard, Minister from Sweden, spoke of the strong Lutheran liftsences in his native land. He said he was proud that it fell to the lot of a Swede to save the Lutheran religion from destruction. He also expressed pride in the fact that Sweden is the strongest Lutheran country in the world.

While waiting for the President to arrive, Dr. Granville called upon Rev. H. K. Fenner and Rev. Dr. Wallace Radeliffe to make short addresses. Both spoke of the great need of men for church work. of the address of Speaker Champ Clark
